Students wishing to study a topic within the humanities and social sciences not offered as a regular course may request that a liberal arts faculty member provide an independent study course. This independent study course may not serve as a substitute for any of the courses in the general education component, including the 300-level electives and senior seminar. Written approval must be given by the instructor and Liberal Arts department head.

Besides the general education requirements, students are also able to broaden their education by choosing to use their free electives for courses beyond their majors.
